1. BACKGROUND

Moldova has one of the poorest coverage with forests in Europe (around 12% of the territory), which is highly fragmented. The current amount of forested area is insufficient to guarantee effective environmental protection. Forests in Moldova are also playing a major role for the energy security of the country. Due to the high cost of imported fossil fuels (mostly natural gas) and electricity for the end consumers, demand of firewood in rural areas is very high. The main source of alternative fuel most often comes from wood collected from the environment (forest wood, downed wood in community land, vineyard residues etc.). The most of the wood comes from the authorized harvesting in the forests managed by Moldsilva Forest Agency. The rest of the wood comes mostly from forests and protection belts which belong to Local Public Authorities, which are usually unmanaged and are subject of illegal logging. Ensuring the proper planning and management of community forests, through building stable diversified forests, ecological reconstruction of forests in time will positively influence and will be a model for carbon sequestration in the framework of climate change and will have a positive social impact on local population and on biodiversity.

In this regard EU Commission under CLIMA EAST package provided a grant to Republic of Moldova to demonstrate a natural resource management model in the pastures and forests of Moldova which increases ecosystems' capacity to sequester carbon under pending climate risks, while at the same time retaining biodiversity and economic values. The CLIMA EAST pilot project targets the pastures and forest degraded lands located in the Orhei National Park area (33,792.09 ha) and its buffer zone. The project will develop innovative pasture and community forest management systems on the whole territory of the park, including rehabilitation of 500 ha of pastures and afforestation of 150 ha of eroded and non-productive lands.

2. SCOPE OF WORK, RESPONSIBILITIES AND DESCRIPTION OF THE PROPOSED ANALYTICAL WORK

The expected output for the assignment is to assist the Local Public Authorities in developing forest management plans for the community forest lands in Orhei National Park region, which will serve as a tool for better management and biodiversity of community forests and increasing the livelihoods in the park area.
