1. BACKGROUND

The GEF funded “Environmental Fiscal Reform Project” (EFRP) was launched in 2011 and sets out to build capacities for implementing environmental fiscal reforms (EFR) that will produce increased national and global environmental benefits through the adoption of selected subsidies, fees, fines, taxes and other appropriate fiscal instruments.

It will initiate and pilot EFR instruments targeted to meeting Rio Convention objectives and ensure their integration within national plans and policies, especially in national taxation and decentralization process in Moldova. The reforms will focus on creating conditions, financial incentives and disincentives, and decreased opportunity costs to undertake actions that deliver environmental outcomes. The expected outcome is that EFR will be adopted as an important element of Moldova’s development policy, whereby improved economic, financial and fiscal instruments and their use would strengthen regulatory and other approaches to environmentally sound and sustainable development, with a particular emphasis of meeting obligations under the three Rio Conventions (Climate Change, Biodiversity, and Desertification). The project will also contribute to and complement a broader national decentralization reform process, including policy planning at the national level, redesigning of competencies and responsibilities of local and sub-national governments and reforming local government revenue systems.

One of the objectives of the project is the improved management and performance of the National Ecological Fund (NEF) including project cycle management, which is the main financing source in the environment sector. With the support of the project, the Ministry of Environment initiated a comprehensive reform of the National Ecological Fund, in view of ensuring the sustainability and functionality of the Fund as an effective tool for financing the implementation of environmental policies and strategic priorities in Moldova. The new draft Regulation and Operational Manual for the National Ecological Fund brings best international practices for public environmental expenditure and project cycle management.

The project strategy of focusing in parallel on strengthened capacities of the Ministry of Environment and other governmental authorities involved in the implementation of the environmental fiscal reform. This will require significantly improved skills of the public servants from central and local authorities to ensure an adequate level of understanding and cooperation for fulfilling Moldova's national and global environmental priorities. By providing necessary training to concerned stakeholders, practitioners, and decision makers regarding the technical and policy options needed for greening and reforming environmental subsidies and charges, analysis of financing markets, and costing exercises to meet global environmental objectives, it is possible to mobilize and engage policy-makers in responding to national and global environmental priorities through the implementation of an EFR process in Moldova. Such an EFR process thus responds to Moldova's commitments to both national and global environmental goals.
